

The background of the entire image is a close-up, artistic arrangement of sliced kiwi fruit. The slices are layered, showing the vibrant green outer skin, the white flesh, and the characteristic rows of small, dark brown seeds. The lighting is bright, highlighting the textures of the fruit.

Some claims are just easy to see through...

From insects to fungi and disease, crop pests are everywhere and do not discriminate! Whether you're buying organic, non-organic, local, or imported, your food almost certainly was grown with the help of pesticides.